Army and Navy Battle Over New Merger Bill

NAVY OPPOSED TO PLAN FOR SINGLE HEAD

Army Leaders Jubilant Over Bill Written By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, April 10 — Army-Navy rivalry broke out again today over a bill to merge the armed forces under a single department of common defense.

The measure, written by a senate military affairs subcommittee, was hailed by Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson as a "comprehensive security program" that was "of vital importance to the country." The generals were jubilant, recognizing the bill as a full-fledged Army victory.

At the Navy department, where a wedding with the Army has always been bitterly opposed, the admirals indicated their opposition to the subcommittee's bill with icy but eloquent silence.

In Winter-long public hearings, the Navy fought the principal merger proposals so bitterly that President Truman finally had to put on a "gag" by announcing that merger was administration policy.

The "gag" still was effective today, but the senate naval affairs committee was quick to reflect the Navy's alarm. The committee "invited" the military subcommittee to explain its proposal to place the Army, Navy and Air Force on equal status under a single cabinet officer.

The subcommittee was expected to do the explaining tomorrow. After that, the naval committee will decide whether to take any action. Committee Chairman David I. Walsh, D. Mass., of the naval committee has threatened to hold his own hearings if the military committee's bill failed to satisfy the Navy.

This would delay senate consideration of the measure for months. Even without an additional inquiry, the outlook for the merger bill was so stormy that Chairman Elbert D. Thomas, D. Utah, of the military committee predicted it could not pass congress at this session.

At the public hearings, Navy witnesses objected particularly to any proposal to eliminate the secretary of the Navy from the cabinet. This the new bill would do.

Present duties of the secretaries of war and navy would be assumed by the new secretary of common defense. He would have under him — below cabinet rank — secretaries for the Navy, Army and Air Force.

These civilian jobs would guarantee civilian control over the military — a factor which the subcommittee considered fundamental to any reorganization.

The bill would create a chief of staff of common defense — an over-all commander of the armed forces, subject only to the President. (Continued on Page Two)

New Probe Of Pearl Harbor Seen

Senator Brewster Predicts Republicans Will Try To Get Facts

WASHINGTON, April 10 — Sen. Owen Brewster, R. Me., predicted today there will be another congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster when Republicans get control of congress.

Brewster and Sen. Homer Ferguson, R. Mich., agreed that the present 10-man joint committee of which they are members "will never get all the facts." The committee is composed of six Democrats and four Republicans.

"It now has become clear that the American people cannot hope to get the whole story of Pearl Harbor until we have a Republican congress," Brewster told reporters. "I have given up trying to butt my head against a stone wall."

He has steadfastly protested against rulings which prevent individual committee members from investigating government files and which allow witnesses to decide what material they have is pertinent to the inquiry.

Brewster and Ferguson complained because they didn't know until yesterday that the late President Roosevelt told the Australian minister in Washington of certain steps planned in pre-Pearl Harbor negotiations with Japan but didn't tell his Army and Navy chiefs.

They referred to documents read into committee records yesterday. Some of them came from Mr. Roosevelt's files, now in the national archives. Among them was evidence that:

Government May Step Into Coal Dispute; Lewis, Operators Argue

By United Press
A settlement was agreed upon in the International Harvester strike today, and Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach indicated that the government was planning more drastic steps to settle the coal mine walkout.

Representatives for International Harvester Company and 30,000 CIO United Farm Equipment workers reached agreement last night on a new contract providing an 18-cent hourly wage increase. The agreement is to be submitted to the union's Harvester council tonight. If accepted the workers are expected to return to their jobs this weekend.

Return of the Harvester employees would cut the number of strike-idle American workers to 658,000.

Schwellenbach said the government would give disputants in the coal strike "a few more days" to reach an agreement. He said the government then would decide what action to take. Seizure of the mines was not contemplated, he said.

Other labor developments:

1. CIO and AFL unions set midnight Saturday as the deadline for a strike of sugar refineries along the Atlantic seaboard.
2. Striking tugboat workers withdrew their picket lines at most piers in the port of Philadelphia and some 7,000 harbor workers who had refused to cross the lines were expected to return to their jobs.
3. Ford Motor Company was recalling 35,000 production workers laid off because of the steel shortage.
4. James C. Petrillo, president of the AFL American Federation of Musicians, opened contract negotiations with eight major motion picture companies by presenting 91 demands, including one that the present minimum salary of $5,200 a year be doubled.

Jap Mothers Carry Babies To Polls

TOKYO, April 10 — Japanese mothers with babies strapped to their backs and millions of other women emancipated by American decree cast ballots today in Japan's first national election under its modified democratic system.

Early voting to choose 466 members of the new diet was brisk and orderly. U. S. Army poll-watching teams posted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur to prevent illegal voting found little to do.

An unexpected number of women crowded into the polls when the balloting began at 7 a. m. to cast votes for the first time in Japanese history. Several mothers carrying babies were among the 60 women to drop ballots into the boxes during the first hour in the first precinct of Toshima ward, Tokyo.

Voting was done in schools and (Continued on Page Two)

New Iran Letter, Russian And Polish Demands Worry Delegates

MEETING SITE STUDIED

Poland Will Formally Ask Severance Of Relations With Franco Spain

NEW YORK, April 10 — United Nations security council members resorted to another secret meeting today to plot how and when to tackle their three new crises, including Iran's objection to the Soviet demand for immediate removal of the Iranian case from the council agenda.

The meeting was called ostensibly to decide whether to stay on at its Hunter college interim headquarters, move to a war plant on Long Island, or look for another place. But the council also will discuss informally:

1. Russia's attempt to wipe the Iranian case off the council books even before Red army troops have left Iran and Iran's demand that the case stay on the books.
2. Poland's notification that it formally will ask the council within a few days — despite American and British objection — to recommend severance of diplomatic relations by all United Nations with Franco Spain.

Little Soviet Support
The Russians — back at the council table after a self-imposed exile of 12 days, 21 hours and 42 minutes — have virtually no support for their vexing proposal for avoiding a report to the council on their recent agreement with Iran and on eventual evacuation of their troops.

Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko was back behind the council table less than three hours before he ran smack into Iran's insistence that the council retain jurisdiction over their case until the last Russian soldier has departed Iran.

No Reversal Seen
There was virtually no chance that the council will reverse its last week's decision — Calling on both Iran and Russia to report to the council on May 6, the date by which the Russians have promised total evacuation of Iran.

Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala, in another letter to the council said:

"I am instructed to state that... it is the desire of my government that the matters referred by Iran to the security council remain on its agenda as provided by the resolution adopted 4 April, 1946."

But the Americans and British have their fingers crossed. They noted that Gromyko was in no hurry yesterday to have his proposal discussed. He concluded yesterday's council meeting with this statement on that subject:

"If the council wishes to consider my letter on Friday, I shall be prepared to accept that decision." (Continued on Page Two)

Generalissimo Urges U. S. To Continue Aggressive World Leadership

BY MILES W. VAUGHN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHUNGKING, April 10 — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek predicted today that a new coalition Chinese government, including adequate Communist representation, may be formed within a few weeks.

The Generalissimo said in an interview that an essential preliminary to a coalition government must be an attitude of sincere cooperation by the Communists. He said that Communist tactics in the slow negotiations proceeding in Chungking are irksome at times. Negotiations should succeed, Chiang emphasized. He stressed that the Communists and all other parties must devote themselves solely to the welfare of China as a whole, and not attempt to "bore from within."

The Generalissimo received me in the living room of his Chungking home. He sat relaxed in an armchair while he talked for more than an hour about China's problems. (Continued on Page Two)

BRITAIN AGREES TO SPAIN ISSUE

Unofficial Reports State British May Discuss Franco At Paris

LONDON, April 10 — Britain was reported unofficially today to have agreed to a discussion of proposed international measures against Franco Spain at the April 25 meeting of the foreign ministers council in Paris.

A foreign office reply to the French note suggesting Franco talks has been delivered in Paris, but its contents have not been divulged.

Diplomatic observers in London believe the British acceptance probably stipulates that the Spanish discussions must not have precedence over settlement of the differences between the Anglo-American and Russian viewpoints on peace treaties with Italy, Finland, and the enemy Balkan states.

A dispatch from Paris to the London Times said today that it (Continued on Page Two)

FROST FAILS TO MAKE SCHEDULED VISIT TO AREA

Heavy frost which had been predicted by the weatherman for Tuesday night in the Circleville area, and which was feared would damage fruit orchards, failed to materialize. The fruit buds were undamaged.

Instead the frost was very light in scattered sections of north and central Ohio with no frost in the Circleville district. The low temperature in Circleville and vicinity, Tuesday night, was 35 degrees above zero.

Milder weather Wednesday night will be followed by cloudy skies and occasional rain Thursday according to the official forecast.

Illinois Congressmen Are Nominated Again

CHICAGO, Ill., April 10 — Party organization candidates, including the 80-year-old dean of the house of representatives and a young naval lieutenant, were the victors today in the first of the nation's post-war primary elections.

In the light voting which followed a spirited campaign in yesterday's Illinois primary election, all 25 incumbent congressmen seeking re-election won nominations for another term. Fifteen were Republicans and 10 were Democrats.

Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, 80, apparently weathered determined opposition in his district to win the Democratic nomination for a 21st term in the house. He is chairman of the house rules committee.

The biggest vote getter on the Republican ticket was Navy Lt. William G. Stratton, 32, who still is on Okinawa. Stratton easily won the nomination for congressman-at-large. In the November election he will face the incumbent Democrat, Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas, who was unopposed in the primary.

Sabath polled 4,893 votes to his opponent's 1,726 with approximately one-half of the districts precincts uncounted.

Stratton rolled up 286,977 votes, nearly four times the combined total of his three opponents, in 5,093 of the state's 9,038 precincts.

RIFLE CHAMP DIES

SEVEN PERSONS DIE IN FIRES

More Than 75 Flee In Night Clothes When Four Blazes Break Out In Boston

BOSTON, April 10 — Seven persons perished, six were injured and more than 75 fled to safety in night clothes early today when fires — which may have been set — broke out in swift succession in four Back Bay apartment houses.

The alarms for the fires were sounded within 45 minutes of each other beginning at 5:15 a. m.

Most serious blaze was in the eight-apartment colonial chambers on Belvidere street. This, like those that followed, started in basement rubbish. Bodies of the seven dead were found in bedrooms on the third and fourth floors. Three children and one adult perished in one apartment and three adults in another. Damage to the four-story building was set at $10,000. Thirty-five occupied. (Continued on Page Two)

OSU OFFICIALS TO PROBE GROUP

Communist Party Says Group "Front" For Activities In University

COLUMBUS, April 10 — Dr. Howard L. Bevis, president of Ohio State University, said today that vice president Bland L. Stradley and dean of men Joseph A. Park would be asked to investigate the Ohio State Youth for Democracy organization.

The group was one of many similar campus organizations in the nation named by the Communist party yesterday as "fronts" for party activities in colleges and universities.

Ohio State officials said the local group had been given recognition only on the condition that it did not affiliate with any national group.

Marvin Lukin of Cleveland, president of the group, said a resolution had been prepared and adopted by a 30 to 7 vote requesting permission to affiliate with the American Youth for Democracy.

Lukin said he was unaware the group had any Communist connections.

The OSYA reportedly was urged to affiliate with American Youth for Democracy last week by Frank Hashmall, Cleveland, Ohio director of the national organization.

Park said the group had caused no trouble on the campus since it was organized in 1943 with the stated purpose of "combating Fascism, racial and religious intolerance; promoting understanding and good will among students, and helping to educate the student body in regard to important topics of the day."

WORKER GRABS THROWN ROPE TO BREAK HIS FALL

CHICAGO, April 10 — James Anderson, 29, was working on a 15th floor scaffold on the Dearborn hotel. He lost his grip and fell.

A rope hung down the side of the building, but Anderson's falling body was at least four feet away. His partner, Phil Walsh, 53, swung the rope toward the falling man. By what Walsh called "a million to one chance," the rope looped about Anderson's body as he hurtled past the eighth floor.

Anderson slid down the rope to the third floor but there he lost his grip and tumbled to the ground.

Attendants at St. Luke's hospital said today that Anderson's only injury was a wrenched back.

ion. If the council prefers Saturday, I shall consent to that. If the council prefers another day, I shall also be in agreement."

Meeting Quiet
Yesterday's council meeting—the first attended by Gromyko since March 27—was a model of harmony and almost perfect procedure for two and one-half hours. The council ran smoothly through 23 suggested provisional rules of procedure and adopted them before trouble started.

The council president Dr. Quo Tai-Chi tried three times to adjourn the meeting. Only the third one stuck and then members agreed to adjourn until called by the secretary general.

In the course of the confused discussion on adjournment, Quo mentioned off-handedly that the council had three matters still pending before it: the Russian letter; an Iranian letter; the promised Polish complaint against Spain.

The mention of a new Iranian letter created a stir among delegates at the council table, the most of whom apparently had had no previous knowledge of it.

Quo's statement also sent UN press officers scurrying for a copy of the text. It was published three hours later—after being distributed first among the council delegates.

Thus the routine meeting on rules of procedure broke up on another discordant note—Russia demanding immediate deletion of the Iranian case from the agenda and Iran demanding that it stay on.

blems. He looked in excellent health and radiated vitality.

Some of the chief points he made were:

1. The United Nations will succeed if the United States continues its present role of vigorous world leadership.

2. China stands squarely behind the UN, but the leaders of the present Chinese government are not so naive as to believe that they can sit supinely by and depend upon the UN to preserve peace without the active support of all democratic peoples.

3. China signed the Sino-Russian treaty last year in good faith and expects to observe its provisions scrupulously.

The Generalissimo repeatedly asserted that the United States must continue its aggressive world leadership because it is the only nation with the power to preserve democracy in the face of any threat.

He said that China had not seen the text of the Yalta agreement until it was released by the state department recently. At the time the Soviet-Chinese treaty was negotiated, he said, China knew the general sense of the Yalta agreement in which the late President Roosevelt agreed to persuade China to grant Russia widespread concessions in Manchuria and to recognize the independence of Soviet outer Mongolia.

DAIRY SUBSIDY PLAN EXPECTED TO BE APPROVED

WASHINGTON, April 10—The government was believed today to be swinging behind a compromise program to spur dairy production with both additional subsidies and some outright price increases.

Specific details of the program are expected to be announced soon. Its purpose will be to increase milk, butter and cheese supplies by relieving the "squeeze" on producers who contend there is no profit in these items under present ceilings.

Government agencies first were reported working on a plan for across-the-board increases in dairy prices. It called for as much as a cent a quart increase in milk prices with corresponding hikes in the price of butter and cheese.

Economic stabilizer Chester Bowles reportedly balked at the plan, however, and asked for additional subsidies instead. His request met with opposition from Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson who wants subsidies removed as fast as possible.

CROP REPORTS MAY DETERMINE FOOD POLICIES

WASHINGTON, April 10—Americans looked to the government's latest crop report today to see if further cuts in the domestic diet will be necessary to assure enough food for hungry peoples overseas.

The report will be issued by the agriculture department late today. It will estimate this country's total prospective food production, including a progress report on the vital winter wheat crop.

Earlier reports have indicated a billion bushel wheat crop this season for the third time in the nation's history. If the crop should materialize, it would aid greatly in easing the global food crisis.

HARVESTER CO. IN AGREEMENT WITH STRIKERS

CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers Union, said he was "quite confident" that the union's Harvester committee would accept the new contract.

Eleven Harvester plants have been strikebound for 80 days.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson, who personally conducted the Harvester negotiations, said he was hopeful that Allis-Chalmers and the J. I. Case Company would follow the lead of Harvester with speedy settlements. Soft coal operators and representatives of the AFL United Mine Workers union yesterday charged each other with "stalling" as another day of fruitless bargaining ended.

UMW President John L. Lewis said the attitude of the operators "betrays any hope of negotiating a contract with them."

The operators replied that Lewis had refused to talk about the "main and important" issue of wages, and that there had been "no real collective bargaining."

Sugar workers set their strike date after three companies operating refineries in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore refused to accept a government fact-finding board as arbiter in their wage dispute. The unions demand an 18-1/2 cent hourly pay boost and the companies have offered 13 cents.

William Collier, field representative of District 50, United Mine Workers (AFL), said 200 Philadelphia tugboat operators would continue their wage strike, although picketing was limited to two piers where tugboats lie strikebound.

A score of persons escaped unassisted and unharmed and this blaze was quickly controlled with loss of only about $1,000.

Next, three alarms were sounded for a fire in two four-story apartment building, one of which was vacant, on Huntington avenue. Twenty occupants of the other escaped. Fireman Frank A. Qualls was injured by shattered glass. Damage was about $20,000.

AMAZED PROBES HEAR STORIES OF JAIL PARTIES

WASHINGTON, April 10—An amazed congressional committee delved further today into a fantastic story of prison revelries at the district of Columbia's sieve-like jail, including one party in which two beautiful models from New York City allegedly took part.

The story was unfolded by Howard B. Cill, suspended prison superintendent. He said prisoners were allowed to roam in and out of the jail and join with guards and the deputy warden in drinking and gambling parties. It was one of these affairs that the two models attended, he said.

The committee is trying to find out the reasons for a series of recent escapes from the prison. The breaks were climaxed last week when two condemned slayers calmly locked up their guards during a friendly card game and cut their way out through a ventilator with a can opener.

COLLEGE SUES TO COLLECT TUITION CLAIMED OWED

Judgment for $535 against Elmer E. Clifton, 809 North Court street, is sought in a suit filed Wednesday in Pickaway county common pleas court by the Greenbrier College, Inc., Lewisburg, W. Va.

The sum is claimed due as the balance on $800 fees owed to the private junior girls' boarding school for Miss Betty Clifton, daughter of Elmer E. Clifton, who it is claimed was enrolled in the college as a boarding student for the term from September 16, 1942 to June 1, 1943. The petition says the total amount paid was $325 and that he has refused to pay the balance.

was understood the United States has agreed to four-power Spanish discussions at the conference. The dispatch added that "there is every likelihood that Spain will figure prominently on the agenda of the Paris meeting."

Acceptance of such talks would constitute an Anglo-American concession to French insistence that the time has come at last to discuss the application of external pressure on Spain for the purpose of getting rid of Franco.

France, with Russian encouragement, has urged breaking-off diplomatic relations with Spain, and the application of sanctions to make Franco's position untenable.

Britain and the United States, however, while condemning Franco, have contended that outside pressure would only serve to strengthen Franco in the eyes of the Spanish people.

The foreign office had made it plain that Britain is opposed to placing the Franco question before the UN security council—a step threatened by France and now actually proposed by Poland. It is considered in London that a discussion of the issue at Paris may be regarded by the British government as the lesser of two evils.

OHIO SCHOOLS FACE SHORTAGE OF INSTRUCTORS

COLUMBUS, April 10—Ohio schools will be short 2,000 teachers next year, a state department of education official said today.

Harold J. Bowers, supervisor of teacher certification, said only substantial increases in teachers' pay schedules would eliminate the shortage.

He said that qualified teachers who drifted into other fields because of higher pay offered the only possible prospects of immediate help.

Bowers reported that a recent canvass showed the state's supply of 39,000 teachers for the coming year would include 6,800 holders of temporary certificates.

He said Ohio had reached rock bottom in tapping even this source of teaching ability, which included those given temporary permits before they finished college, or began teaching 15 or 20 years ago when requirements were lower.

No schools were closed because of a lack of teachers, he said, but some classes were so overcrowded that superintendents reported they would be "better off closed."

Bowers reported that 10,000 teachers left Ohio classrooms during the war, one-third of them for military service. Another one third went into industry or business, and the remainder left because of marriage or other reasons.

He pointed out that annual pay of elementary school teachers in Ohio was from $1,100 to $2,800, an average far below what non-educational employers offered persons of similar ability and background.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN TO TRAIN AT FORT KNOX

COLUMBUS, O., April 10—Annual Summer training of ground troops of Ohio's post-war national guard will be held at Ft. Knox, Ky., when the guard is re-established. Adj. Gen. D. F. Pancoast was notified today from Washington.

Artillery units of the Ohio guard received their Summer training at Ft. Knox prior to World War II and probably will continue to do so under the post-war plan.

Camp Perry was outmoded by developments of modern warfare even for infantry units, Gen. Pancoast pointed out some time ago.

NEW UNIVERSITY AT WASHINGTON IS SUGGESTED

COLUMBUS, O., April 10—Establishment of a new university at Washington C. H. to help relieve overcrowded institutions was proposed to Gov. Frank J. Lausche today by Reed Winegardner of Washington C. H.

Winegardner, democratic candidate for the nomination for attorney general, asked the governor to include the proposal in his call for a special session of the legislature, expected after the May 7 primary election.

He suggested that the proposed new university be called the Ohio Southern University. The plan contemplates a $5,000,000 appropriation by the legislature for construction of necessary buildings.

The new university would be used largely for instruction in agriculture and related subjects, according to the recommendation.

John Evans reported that Earl Smith, of the Mills Brothers Circus, has contacted merchants to purchase tickets which are to be given to underprivileged children, and that the circus promises to be an outstanding entertainment feature for Pickaway county.

New members welcomed Tuesday night were: Lawrence Goeller, Jr., Ray Francis, James Grannen and Ray Goetting. Guests introduced were Mr. Smith, Bob Rockhold, Henry Schroeder, Ed Ebert, Jr., and Joseph Dodson.

Garbage Collection Discussed At Meeting; Four New Members Present

Garbage collection program in Circleville was under further discussion at a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday night. Plans were also mapped for stimulating the organization's public safety campaign.

Gerald E. Miller, chairman of the public health committee, reported that the initial three-day garbage collection ended Monday and that pickups will necessarily be a little slow until the collector becomes familiar with his route. More subscribers are needed, Miller explained, and it may become necessary to stage a house-to-house canvass.

A program of safety education was presented by Richard Morris, of the youth welfare committee. With the co-operation of the public safety committee the Jaycees will purchase school caution signs and silent policemen for school crosswalks. Safety posters and essay contests will be sponsored, and a monthly educational movie or speaker on safety will be provided for the public schools. A part of the safety program will be started before the end of the present school term, with the full program to be under way in the fall. Proceeds from the Mills Brothers Circus, to show in Circleville April 30, will be used to finance the safety program.

HARMONY BEING SOUGHT DURING SECRET SESSION

New Iran Letter, Russian And Polish Demands Worry Delegates

ion. If the council prefers Saturday, I shall consent to that. If the council prefers another day, I shall also be in agreement."

Meeting Quiet
Yesterday's council meeting—the first attended by Gromyko since March 27—was a model of harmony and almost perfect procedure for two and one-half hours. The council ran smoothly through 23 suggested provisional rules of procedure and adopted them before trouble started.

The council president Dr. Quo Tai-Chi tried three times to adjourn the meeting. Only the third one stuck and then members agreed to adjourn until called by the secretary general.

In the course of the confused discussion on adjournment, Quo mentioned off-handedly that the council had three matters still pending before it: the Russian letter; an Iranian letter; the promised Polish complaint against Spain.

The mention of a new Iranian letter created a stir among delegates at the council table, the most of whom apparently had had no previous knowledge of it.

Quo's statement also sent UN press officers scurrying for a copy of the text. It was published three hours later—after being distributed first among the council delegates.

Thus the routine meeting on rules of procedure broke up on another discordant note—Russia demanding immediate deletion of the Iranian case from the agenda and Iran demanding that it stay on.

blems. He looked in excellent health and radiated vitality.

Some of the chief points he made were:

1. The United Nations will succeed if the United States continues its present role of vigorous world leadership.

2. China stands squarely behind the UN, but the leaders of the present Chinese government are not so naive as to believe that they can sit supinely by and depend upon the UN to preserve peace without the active support of all democratic peoples.

3. China signed the Sino-Russian treaty last year in good faith and expects to observe its provisions scrupulously.

The Generalissimo repeatedly asserted that the United States must continue its aggressive world leadership because it is the only nation with the power to preserve democracy in the face of any threat.

He said that China had not seen the text of the Yalta agreement until it was released by the state department recently. At the time the Soviet-Chinese treaty was negotiated, he said, China knew the general sense of the Yalta agreement in which the late President Roosevelt agreed to persuade China to grant Russia widespread concessions in Manchuria and to recognize the independence of Soviet outer Mongolia.

DAIRY SUBSIDY PLAN EXPECTED TO BE APPROVED

WASHINGTON, April 10—The government was believed today to be swinging behind a compromise program to spur dairy production with both additional subsidies and some outright price increases.

Specific details of the program are expected to be announced soon. Its purpose will be to increase milk, butter and cheese supplies by relieving the "squeeze" on producers who contend there is no profit in these items under present ceilings.

Government agencies first were reported working on a plan for across-the-board increases in dairy prices. It called for as much as a cent a quart increase in milk prices with corresponding hikes in the price of butter and cheese.

Economic stabilizer Chester Bowles reportedly balked at the plan, however, and asked for additional subsidies instead. His request met with opposition from Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson who wants subsidies removed as fast as possible.

CROP REPORTS MAY DETERMINE FOOD POLICIES

WASHINGTON, April 10—Americans looked to the government's latest crop report today to see if further cuts in the domestic diet will be necessary to assure enough food for hungry peoples overseas.

The report will be issued by the agriculture department late today. It will estimate this country's total prospective food production, including a progress report on the vital winter wheat crop.

HARVESTER CO. IN AGREEMENT WITH STRIKERS

CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers Union, said he was "quite confident" that the union's Harvester committee would accept the new contract.

Eleven Harvester plants have been strikebound for 80 days.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson, who personally conducted the Harvester negotiations, said he was hopeful that Allis-Chalmers and the J. I. Case Company would follow the lead of Harvester with speedy settlements.

Soft coal operators and representatives of the AFL United Mine Workers union yesterday charged each other with "stalling" as another day of fruitless bargaining ended.

UMW President John L. Lewis said the attitude of the operators "betrays any hope of negotiating a contract with them."

The operators replied that Lewis had refused to talk about the "main and important" issue of wages, and that there had been "no real collective bargaining."

Sugar workers set their strike date after three companies operating refineries in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore refused to accept a government fact-finding board as arbiter in their wage dispute. The unions demand an 18-1/2 cent hourly pay boost and the companies have offered 13 cents.

William Collier, field representative of District 50, United Mine Workers (AFL), said 200 Philadelphia tugboat operators would continue their wage strike, although picketing was limited to two piers where tugboats lie strikebound.

Soon after this fire, another started in a four-story apartment block on nearby Irvington street. A score of persons escaped unharmed and unharmed and this blaze was quickly controlled with loss of only about $1,000.

Next, three alarms were sounded for a fire in two four-story apartment building, one of which was vacant, on Huntington avenue. Twenty occupants of the other escaped. Fireman Frank A. Qualls was injured by shattered glass. Damage was about $20,000.

AMAZED PROBES HEAR STORIES OF JAIL PARTIES

WASHINGTON, April 10—An amazed congressional committee delved further today into a fantastic story of prison revelries at the district of Columbia's sive-like jail, including one party in which two beautiful models from New York City allegedly took part.

The story was unfolded by Howard B. Cill, suspended prison superintendent. He said prisoners were allowed to roam in and out of the jail and join with guards and the deputy warden in drinking and gambling parties. It was one of these affairs that the two models attended, he said.

The committee is trying to find out the reasons for a series of recent escapes from the prison. The breaks were climaxed last week when two condemned slayers calmly locked up their guards during a friendly card game and cut their way out through a ventilator with a can opener.

COLLEGE SUES TO COLLECT TUITION CLAIMED OWED

Judgment for $535 against Elmer E. Clifton, 809 North Court street, is sought in a suit filed Wednesday in Pickaway county common pleas court by the Greenbrier College, Inc., Lewisburg, W. Va.

The sum is claimed due as the balance on $800 fees owed to the private junior girls' boarding school for Miss Betty Clifton, daughter of Elmer E. Clifton, who it is claimed was enrolled in the college as a boarding student for the term from September 16, 1942 to June 1, 1943. The petition says the total amount paid was $325 and that he has refused to pay the balance.

was understood the United States has agreed to four-power Spanish discussions at the conference. The dispatch added that "there is every likelihood that Spain will figure prominently on the agenda of the Paris meeting."

Acceptance of such talks would constitute an Anglo-American concession to French insistence that the time has come at last to discuss the application of external pressure on Spain for the purpose of getting rid of Franco.

France, with Russian encouragement, has urged breaking-off diplomatic relations with Spain, and the application of sanctions to make Franco's position untenable.

Britain and the United States, however, while condemning Franco, have contended that outside pressure would only serve to strengthen Franco in the eyes of the Spanish people.

The foreign office had made it plain that Britain is opposed to placing the Franco question before the UN security council—a step threatened by France and now actually proposed by Poland. It is considered in London that a discussion of the issue at Paris may be regarded by the British government as the lesser of two evils.

OHIO SCHOOLS FACE SHORTAGE OF INSTRUCTORS

COLUMBUS, April 10—Ohio schools will be short 2,000 teachers next year, a state department of education official said today.

Harold J. Bowers, supervisor of teacher certification, said only substantial increases in teachers' pay schedules would eliminate the shortage.

He said that qualified teachers who drifted into other fields because of higher pay offered the only possible prospects of immediate help.

Bowers reported that a recent canvass showed the state's supply of 39,000 teachers for the coming year would include 6800 holders of temporary certificates.

He said Ohio had reached rock bottom in tapping even this source of teaching ability, which included those given temporary permits before they finished college, or began teaching 15 or 20 years ago when requirements were lower.

No schools were closed because of a lack of teachers, he said, but some classes were so overcrowded that superintendents reported they would be "better off closed."

Bowers reported that 10,000 teachers left Ohio classrooms during the war, one-third of them for military service. Another one third went into industry or business, and the remainder left because of marriage or other reasons.

He pointed out that annual pay of elementary school teachers in Ohio was from $1100 to $2800, an average far below what non-educational employers offered persons of similar ability and background.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN TO TRAIN AT FORT KNOX

COLUMBUS, O., April 10—Annual Summer training of ground troops of Ohio's post-war national guard will be held at Ft. Knox, Ky., when the guard is re-established. Adj. Gen. D. F. Panoast was notified today from Washington.

Artillery units of the Ohio guard received their Summer training at Ft. Knox prior to World War II and probably will continue to do so under the post-war plan.

Camp Perry was outmoded by developments of modern warfare even for infantry units, Gen. Panoast pointed out some time ago.

Senior Class Will Present Mystery Thriller May 2, 3

On May 2 and 3 the senior class of Circleville high school, under the direction of Samuel R. Johnson, will produce a mystery drama, "Nine Girls," in a prologue and two acts.

This Broadway thriller offers a new twist to the field of mystery. The killer is not an embittered alien or a sinister butler but one of a group of nine pretty college girls effervescent as ice cream soda and seemingly just as harmless, who have assembled for an initiation in their clubhouse.

The prologue begins with two of the girls preparing to open the clubhouse. The holiday mood of the younger girl dominates while Jane strives to conceal the horror the place holds for her. In crisp dialogue and accelerating pace the tension increases to the moment when Jane screams a warning as the younger girl approaches the spot where a murdered body once lay concealed.

Act one opens three years earlier with a radio announcer describing the shocking murder of Paula, a young college girl. But the announcement is made to an empty room and the girls drift in unaware that tragedy has struck them. Each succeeding scene builds up to the crescendo of the finale. Tickets will go on sale Monday and may be purchased from any member of the senior class.

MEASURING OF LENGTH TO BE MORE ACCURATE

Mercury Made From Gold Promises To Provide New Standard

BY RODNEY GUILFOIL

United Press Staff Correspondent
BERKELEY, Calif., April 10—The transformation of gold into mercury today promised to give the world a new and more accurate standard for the measurement of length.

Two scientists disclosed that the mercury produced from this gold yields a neon-like green light ray 10 times as accurate as present scientific "yardsticks."

The green spectroscopic ray was developed by Dr. Jacob M. Weins, staff engineer of the U. S. Navy electronics research laboratory on the University of California campus, and Dr. Luis Alvarez, professor of physics and a leading atomic scientist.

Weins and Alvarez used the university's atom-smashing cyclotron to produce the new ray which they claim is accurate to two-millionths of an inch. They have suggested it as a replacement for cadmium "red" light and other rays heretofore used to determine length.

The ray is produced by bombarding about five milligrams of gold—about a half cent's worth—with neutrons to turn it into a high-purity mercury. The mercury is then vaporized and excited in a quartz tube, by high frequency radio energy.

The light from the special mercury glows green in contrast to the blue-green light given off by ordinary mercury. It gives off light waves with very sharp crests a little more than two-millionths of an inch apart. This difference never varies more than a fifty-billionth of an inch.

About a dozen special quartz lamps have been built and sent to the U. S. bureau of standards and the Eastman Kodak company for experimentation, the scientists said.

In 1870, the meter was adopted as the international standard of length. Twenty-three years later, it was decided to measure the meter in terms of cadmium light rays and since then the calculation has been the practical basis for measurement.

The new green light is 10 times as accurate as the red light originally used on the meter, the scientists said.

Weins and Alvarez said the mercury lamps had proven themselves to be a practical simplified improvement over cadmium and may mean the eventual end of the fine lines used in markings on scientific instruments.

The physicists hope soon to produce mercury rays by a lamp which can be plugged into a 110-volt light circuit. The cadmium lamp requires a furnace to operate it.

MEASURING OF LENGTH TO BE MORE ACCURATE

Mercury Made From Gold Promises To Provide New Standard

BY RODNEY GUILFOIL

United Press Staff Correspondent
BERKELEY, Calif., April 10—The transformation of gold into mercury today promised to give the world a new and more accurate standard for the measurement of length.

Two scientists disclosed that the mercury produced from this gold yields a neon-like green light ray 10 times as accurate as present scientific "yardsticks."

The green spectroscopic ray was developed by Dr. Jacob M. Welns, staff engineer of the U. S. Navy electronics research laboratory on the University of California campus, and Dr. Luis Alvarez, professor of physics and a leading atomic scientist.

Welns and Alvarez used the university's atom-smashing cyclotron to produce the new ray which they claim is accurate to two-millionths of an inch. They have suggested it as a replacement for cadmium "red" light and other rays heretofore used to determine length.

The ray is produced by bombarding about five milligrams of gold—about a half cent's worth—with neutrons to turn it into a high-purity mercury. The mercury is then vaporized and excited in a quartz tube, by high frequency radio energy.

The light from the special mercury glows green in contrast to the blue-green light given off by ordinary mercury. It gives off light waves with very sharp crests a little more than two-millionths of an inch apart. This difference never varies more than a fifty-billionth of an inch.

WIVES WARNED GERMAN LIVING WILL BE 'ROUGH'

Soldiers' Families Cannot
Expect 'Bed of Roses'
General Reminds

WASHINGTON, April 10—Soldiers' wives going to occupied Germany to be with their husbands were warned today that living there will not be any "bed of roses."

Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, chief of Army transportation, said that "in some cases it is probable that dependents necessarily will have to live under unattractive conditions from the standpoint of comfort and convenience."

However, all basic essential requirements will be furnished and the health and safety of dependents will be carefully safeguarded," he said.

The first group, comprising 538 wives and children, will leave New York aboard the Army transport Thomas H. Barry April 18. The Henry Gibbins will depart April 22 and the George W. Goethals April 26. Each of the latter two will carry 454 dependents.

Only 24 of the 700 families in the first groups are enlisted men's. The ships will unload at Bremerhaven, Germany. Within 24 hours, the dependents will be moved in first class rail transportation to military communities in the U. S. zone of Germany. Each community will have about 3,000 persons.

Leavey warned the dependents not to expect "luxury liner" accommodations on the ships. The transports have been used to bring "war brides" to this country.

The trains out of Bremen will have diners and American nurses and hostesses to assist mothers in caring for children. There will be sleeping cars for overnight trips.

The Army will provide food in special dining rooms for the families until the wives can set up housekeeping. They can pick up a few chairs and beds from the Army.

Conveniences end there. Some of the inconveniences are:

1. Automobiles shipped over will reach Europe "in a month or two," but the owners won't be able to buy much gas to run them.
2. Each family must bring along a good supply of Summer and Winter clothing, because there is little available in Germany.
3. Travel for recreation to points outside the U. S. zone of occupation will be "extremely limited."
4. Hotel accommodations in both Germany and liberated countries are scarce.
5. Buying of food from civilian

WIVES WARNED GERMAN LIVING WILL BE 'ROUGH'

Soldiers' Families Cannot Expect 'Bed Of Roses'
General Reminds

WASHINGTON, April 10—Soldiers' wives going to occupied Germany to be with their husbands were warned today that living there will not be any "bed of roses."

Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, chief of Army transportation, said that "in some cases it is probable that dependents necessarily will have to live under unattractive conditions from the standpoint of comfort and convenience."

However, all basic essential requirements will be furnished and the health and safety of dependents will be carefully safeguarded," he said.

The first group, comprising 538 wives and children, will leave New York aboard the Army transport Thomas H. Barry April 18. The Henry Gibbins will depart April 22 and the George W. Goethals April 26. Each of the latter two will carry 454 dependents.

Only 24 of the 700 families in the first group are enlisted men's.

The ships will unload at Bremerhaven, Germany. Within 24 hours, the dependents will be moved in first class rail transportation to military communities in the U. S. zone of Germany. Each community will have about 3,000 persons.

Leavey warned the dependents not to expect "luxury liner" accommodations on the ships. The transports have been used to bring "war brides" to this country.

The trains out of Bremen will have diners and American nurses and hostesses to assist mothers in caring for children. There will be sleeping cars for overnight trips.

The Army will provide food in special dining rooms for the families until the wives can get up housekeeping. They can pick up a few chairs and beds from the Army.

Conveniences and there. Some of the inconveniences are:

1. Automobiles shipped over will reach Europe "in a month or two," but the owners won't be able to buy much gas to run them.
2. Each family must bring along a good supply of Summer and Winter clothing, because there is little available in Germany.
3. Travel for recreation to points outside the U. S. zone of occupation will be "extremely limited."
4. Hotel accommodations in both Germany and liberated countries are scarce.
5. Buying of food from civilian sources is prohibited.

PUBLIC LANDS IMPROVEMENTS BEING PLANNED

Interior Department Backing
Bill for Preparation
Of 'Raw' Property

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The interior department is backing a bill which would provide for preliminary preparation of raw public lands for settlement.

Introduced by Rep. John R. Murdock, R., Ariz., the bill is an omnibus of many loose ends which the department would like to see passed. The bill has passed the house and is about to be heard in committee in the senate.

The importance of the bill is that it would provide partial cultivation of lands on bureau of reclamation projects which will be opened late this summer for settlement.

At present, the bureau has authorization for primary development of the lands on only a few projects. The bill would permit such development on all public land that is to be opened for settlement.

The work to be done on the land would include leveling, construction of farm ditches on units of public lands, planting of soil-building crops and "other necessary expenses in the preparation of raw public lands for irrigation farming."

The farms, which under public law cannot exceed 160 acres each, could run as low as 80 acres if the secretary of interior deemed them sufficient to support a normal family at a sufficient standard of living.

At present, the bureau is planning to open 22,000 acres for settlement late in the summer. These lands are on four reclamation projects—Shoshone in Wyoming, Rosa division of Yakima in Washington, Tule lake area of Klamath (Oregon-California) and Minidoka in Idaho.

The department has expressed its desire to make much farming land available for returning veterans by opening more public lands for settlement. At present, however, there are no lands open.

Although raw public lands have been settled in the past, the department's project would save prospective settlers many months and many dollars worth of labor and materials in preparing the lands for farming.

The bill also would authorize operation and maintenance of camps and other facilities turned over by construction contractors on the Columbia basin project in Washington.

It would provide for payments to school districts around all federal reclamation projects for cost of instruction in elementary and secondary schools of dependents of federal employees on reclamation projects.

The school payments affect particularly areas in and around Mason City and Coulee Dam, Wash.; Boulder City, Nev.; Davis Dam, Ariz. and Nev., and Seminole Dam, Wyoming.

ROUTE 3 AMONG STATE HIGHWAYS TO BE IMPROVED

As part of Ohio's $5,000,000 road program for 1946 which includes 88 projects in 58 of the state's 88 counties, State Highway Director Perry T. Ford announced Wednesday that bids will be opened April 30 on 17 road repair projects in 17 counties including Pickaway.

The 17 projects include 13 listed in the $5,000,000 state road construction program.

The bids to be opened April 30 include the resurfacing of part of State Route 3, known as the three-C highway in Pickaway county, at an estimated cost of $25,210. The date for completion of the improvement is July 15, 1946.

WORKING OUT OF IT

WARS inevitably come "the hard way" and when they're over it is natural for weary and straitened nations to try disposing of them the easy way. But as some fact-facing commentators are now pointing out, there is no easy way for that process, either. Natural forces, backed by intelligent and courageous leaders, must be allowed to work their way out. A clear-headed commentator writes in the Cleveland Plain Dealer that this is where the government at Washington is going wrong. He observes:

"It is unwilling to allow a free play of the economic forces governing production, demand and prices, because it is afraid of what might happen. Coupled with fear is a childlike faith in its ability to manage and control the nation's economy in such a way as to escape the consequences of the appalling wastefulness and destruction which is the inevitable concomitant of modern warfare."

He insists that we might as well face the fact that there is no easy way, and act accordingly, taking whatever punishment or loss comes our way. That will hurt—but not so much in the long run as if we balk and hesitate and fumble.

FORTY-NINTH STATE

IS there to be a 49th state? If so, Hawaii is the likeliest choice, and a campaign for its admission has begun. Alaska, the next possibility, had only 72,000 people by the last census, which is a little meager for a state. Hawaii had 415,000, which is well above the average population of states with but one congressman.

The objection to admitting Hawaii has been its Oriental population. It has 155,000 Japanese, 52,000 Filipinos, 28,000 Chinese and 6,000 Koreans. The last three have certainly come closer to our hearts than ever before, by reason of their sufferings in the war and the help they brought. And the Hawaiians of Japanese blood, who had plenty of opportunities for sabotage and spying, did not constitute a serious problem.

Among the people likely to demur to any new state are the flagmakers. A field of 48 states is easy to arrange artistically, one of 49 may present difficulties. Here is a possible project for school art departments.

The much abused liberal has at least this merit, that he can see both sides. Thus he becomes an interpreter between the extremists, and any real solution of public problems is likely to come from him.

Back Of The Headlines ...By Louis F. Keemle

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

It is somehow symbolic that the last rites for the League of Nations should be in progress in Geneva at the same time that its successor, the United Nations, is grappling with one crisis after another in New York.

The scene has shifted from the old world to the new; the problems remain much the same in pattern, although in many ways much larger in scope. The world is waiting in anxiety to see whether they will be handled more intelligently and effectively.

The league is dead, but it is passing on to its infant successor a legacy which is not all failure and disillusionment.

The valuable part of the legacy is a record of experience and of earnest effort toward a lofty goal, even if the effort failed. In addition, there is a groundwork of research and planning in economic, social, health and related problems which should put the UN far ahead of what it would have been had it started from scratch.

Even more, there is a negative value which might be the greatest of all. That consists of the lessons to be learned from the league's mistakes and occasional successes.

Many reasons have been advanced for the failure of the League of Nations. The chief and most obvious is the absence of the United States throughout the league's existence, and the limited adherence of Russia, which was admitted on sufferance in the 1920's and expelled in 1939 after the invasion of Finland.

The league had vague provisions for collective action against an aggressor, but its members were not bound to take armed action and it had no international military force. Economic penalties were tried, but failed miserably. The powers which subsequently became the Axis wrecked the league by successive acts of aggression.

Germany kicked over the Versailles treaty, which was inextricably bound into the league covenant. Japan flagrantly violated the terms of her mandate over the Pacific islands by fortifying them for war, and later got away with the annexation of Manchuria. Italy invaded Ethiopia and was not punished. The league floundered helplessly in the face of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war.

With each successive step, the aggressor nations realized that if they could get away with one clear act of defiance, they eventually could get away with anything. Hence the second world war.

The fear among delegates to the present UN security council in New York has been that if the authority of the UN is flouted at this stage, the result would be weakening and dangerous to the world organization.

Every effort therefore is being made to preserve at least the semblance of UN jurisdiction over any dispute or question that might endanger world peace. Wide concessions were made to keep the Greek, Indonesian or Iranian issues within bounds.

The real problem has been for the big nations to pull together, and so far it has been a terrific strain. If Russia, Britain and the United States can emerge from the present meeting without an open split, the smaller nations are likely to have a little of their confidence restored. The shadow of the atomic bomb may be somewhat less frightening.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, April 10—James Caesar Petrillo was on record today regarding his name. He was just as explicit about it as he is about his demands that radio and the motion pictures employ more members of the American Federation of Musicians, which he heads.

"My name is James Caesar Petrillo," he said, when a question about his middle name arose. "My brother's name is Caesar James Petrillo (Chicago orchestra leader). People get us mixed up."

After this classic understatement, the AFM president proceeded to tell a conference of his executive board and a committee of the National Association of Broadcasters that the radio people would have more money with which to hire musicians, if they spent less "to publicize the name Caesar." He also complained about newspaper cartoons portraying him in a critical light. Of the legislation awaiting presidential signature which is designed to curb AFM demands on radio, he said that one Georgia network station stands ready to dismiss its three $20-per-week musicians if the bill becomes law.

However, the conference was amicable in the main and both sides agreed to formation of a joint committee charged with resolving differences before they reach a critical stage. A pressing problem is the union's demand that some 400 radio stations hire musicians to compensate for the fact that their use of recordings keeps union men out of work. Petrillo said that "we can't be friends" unless the broadcasters stop their "propaganda."

This is Petrillo's busy week. Today he began conferences with representatives of the movie industry to achieve a new contract to replace one which expired April 1. The AFM wants more of its members employed in the Hollywood studios and higher pay as well.

The so-called Broadway squad, a deluxe detective group charged with keeping the gay white way free of criminals, has been abolished in the current police department changes. The explanation is that this special detail is not necessary and that the men are needed in other districts which are undermanned. Precinct detectives will handle the chores of the Broadway squad from now on.

GET THEM IN A RUSH

A SOLID side suit in the dummy may always frighten the defenders against a trump contract. It stands there ready to furnish discards for the declarer of losers in his other suits. The defenders should, in such a case, concentrate every resource upon picking off tricks in some other suit or suits as rapidly as possible. Unless they can do it in a hurry, they may never score those tricks.

West led his diamond 3 to the A, which dropped the K. "Oh, the old false-card," thought East to himself. "West probably has a singleton, and if I return a diamond he will get a ruff."

But South trumped the second diamond, took out trumps in two rounds, then on the dummy's hearts discarded all three of his worthless clubs. That enabled him to make his contract plus two extras, losing nothing but the one trick in diamonds.

Careful figuring should have told East the probable situation. If West's card had been a singleton, South would have had four diamonds, the K-Q-9-5, which on the bidding was nowhere near as likely as that West had four and South a singleton plus three clubs.

Those hearts in the dummy threatened to furnish discards of any losing clubs or diamonds. East should have considered quick club tricks the most important factor in the hand. If he had returned a club, it is easy to see how three tricks in that suit would have beaten South.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Troublesome Irritation Often Relieved By Ointment

By HERMAN K. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ITCHING around the lower opening of the bowel may not be an indication of serious disease but it can be a troublesome, nuisance-making ailment and irritating in the extreme. Not only is it one of the most frequent of all afflictions of this area of the body, but occasionally one of the most difficult to treat.

Because in many instances it is impossible to find the cause of the trouble, treatment for the most part is devoted to the use of such substances as will relieve the itching. For example, ointments, lotions and the injection of pain-relieving substances or anesthetics have been employed. X-ray treatments have also been used.

Suggested Ointment

Doctors Linn J. Boyd and Emma Bellows of New York have suggested using an ointment made up of lanolin and cholesterol with cetyl alcohol. In addition, it contained witch hazel, tannin and ephedrine. It would seem that an ointment of this type permits easy absorption of the substances and these substances in turn aid in relieving the itching. Anesthetics such as benzocaine and chlorbutanol may also be included in such preparations.

In a number of patients who used the ointment, relief was obtained often after a period of months. It was found that the patients who also had some form of ringworm infection of the skin around the lower opening of the bowel. Hence, it would appear that some substance might also be included in the ointment which would tend to get rid of the fungous infections.

Antiseptic Substance

The proper concentrate of benzocaine should be employed since an excessive amount will lead to irritation. It is also a good plan to include in ointments used for pruritis ani, as this condition is called, some anti-septic substance to aid in overcoming germ infections which may be present. Of course, a physician must supervise this type of care.

In every instance of this disorder, it is important to have a careful study made to determine if some condition may not be present which aids in producing the itching, for example, hemorrhoids or perhaps colitis and diarrhea.

On the other hand, it will be found that in most instances there is no disorder present to account for the itching. In these cases, the use of an ointment which allows the anesthetic present in it to be easily absorbed or taken up and also deposits antiseptic substances on the skin, will be helpful in giving temporary relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. T. L.: What are the symptoms of mucous colitis?

Answer: Mucous colitis causes such symptoms as alternating attacks of constipation and loose bowels, some pain in the abdomen, and occasionally nausea or sickness to the stomach.

A careful study by your physician is necessary before an accurate diagnosis can be made. A bland diet, that is, one that contains no highly seasoned or irritating foods, is usually employed by persons with this disorder.

Mr. J.: I have hardening of the arteries and constipation. I have been taking bran which seems to help me. Is it all right to continue taking it?

Answer: I see no reason why you should not continue using the bran if you find it helpful to relieve the constipation.

A. A.: Quite often the skin breaks open in the inside of my lower lip. What causes this?

Answer: This condition might be due to vitamin deficiency, lack of riboflavin or vitamin B-2. It might also be due to chapping or to some infection. I suggest an examination by a skin specialist.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

BACK IN the living room I found only Claire.

"They're in the murder room, having a conference," she informed me. "So I've had me an earful in here. Swell work, Jane."

"Nicely done," Inspector Barry approved when he returned a few minutes later with Hunt. "Your promise to come out to Elmpoint was a little rash, but I guess I'll let you keep it. With Berwick going along, of course, for protection."

And then, glory be, they left. After a few brief instructions, mostly to Claire, about the packing of Margot's belongings and their delivery to the police.

"You've both been good girls," the inspector commended on his way out. "But I want you to do one thing more for me. You, Miss Jane, write down all you recall of Mrs. Ingalls' doings and sayings during her stay with you. And you, Miss Claire, do the same, going farther back into the past, seeing you've known the lady quite a few years."

"Only 20," Claire told the closing door with a grimace. "And, boy, what I could tell about her would make a fair sized book. Only—no one would dare publish it."

The rest of the day was uneventful.

Claire, with inexhaustible energy, packed Margot's trunks and, I'm ashamed to confess, sat around half dazed, aching with fatigue and unable to think clearly.

But the horror and excitement I'd been through hadn't impaired my appetite, and I did full justice to the delicious dinner Rosa fixed up for us.

Soon afterwards we all went to bed and Claire and Rosa—or so they assured me the following morning—fell asleep instantly.

I, however, dead tired though I was, did not. The moment I'd turned out the light my dazed brain started functioning with a vengeance and I had a debate with myself about what to write down for Inspector Barry and what to leave unsaid.

The cigar stubs. No two ways about them. The inspector had to know they'd been planted on Margot's highball tray to implicate Deane. But to make my confession in writing wouldn't look so good. I'd better tell him, in words, I decided. Too bad I hadn't done it right away. But then Hunt, concerning Margot's threat with her rudeness to Deane, had thrown me off.

Strange, those letters. They pointed unflinchingly to Margot Ingalls' last lover as her murderer. But they didn't account for the place in which he had killed her.

Why had she been in Neal's room at all? And why had she clutched that cushion?

I suddenly wondered if it had been left behind or taken away in the dead woman's hand. And became so curious about it, I got out of bed, slipped on a robe and tipped across the apartment to see.

The pillow was there, lying by itself at the foot of the huge divan. And when I picked it up mechanically to put it where it belonged, something light and soft touched my face: a small bit of down, floating upward lazily.

For a second I couldn't imagine from where it came.

Then I discovered a cut in the cushion from which the down stuff was escaping slowly when I handled the pillow. It was near a seam, and completely unnoticeable among the ornate shirrings and puffs of the cover, unless you looked closely.

So Margot had not just "grabbed the pillow in falling," but had used it as a shield, to protect herself from her murderer, whose knife had first stabbed into the soft material!

I stood there, holding the pillow as Margot must have held it. Trying to visualize the scene.

And suddenly I saw quite another. A white figure standing in the middle of a moonlit room that had once contained the furniture around me. A hushed voice saying: "They're empty." A strange guest, night walking in a strange house.

Had the house been strange to Brenda Knight? Was her late visit the accident it had seemed? Had she merely stated a fact when she'd said those words—or had they been an expression of surprise?

And if her visit had been premeditated, what in God's name was its connection with Margot Ingalls' murder?

Sunday morning brought the drumming of rain on the windows and the sudden chill that sometimes descends on New York in a hot September.

Perhaps that had something to do with it, and perhaps it was a general let-down. Anyway, Claire and I slept until 10, dressed leisurely, and then ate a sumptuous brunch in the dining room, during which Rosa, visibly recovered from the shock of finding Margot's body, regaled us with the news that the Lincolnfield had come up in the world while we slept—it had a doorman now.

"In the elegantest uniform," she enthused. "Gold braid'n everything. It's that grand, no one would believe there was a detective in it, to look at it! Charley Bywater's name is. He's married and has five little ones and I give him breakfast when I had mine. In the kitchen. Hope you don't mind, Miss Jane."

Far from minding, I admonished her to be sure and feed our "doorman," morning, noon or night, in gratitude for their protection. Then we went into the living room and curled up on the sofa with stacks of newspapers between us, to find out what the press had to say about "our murder," as we were beginning to call it.

"FAMOUS AUTHOR KILLED ON VISIT TO HER AGENT" was the favorite headline. But "UTHORESS MURDERED IN HOME OF YOUNG STAR" ran it a close second. And if whole columns were given over to a summary of Margot's long career, not much less space was devoted to Neal's shorter one.

"How did she do it?" Claire marveled. "I've talked myself hoarse, giving the boys the proper dope. And here your sister, way off in Boston, cops herself a swell lot of publicity out of our mess!"

"The miracle of modern communications," I told her with a shrug. "What does it matter?" Most of the papers called Margot "handsome" or even "beautiful." Only one had the bad taste to say she was "well preserved." All of them spoke of her murder as a "fatal lovers' quarrel" or a "crime of passion." And speculations about the identity of the slayer, in the more yellow sheets, invited libel suits by mentioning the dead woman's last husband and a Hollywood director with whom she had been seen night spots.

Neal's publicity was even more glowing. The press raved about her beauty, her talent, her glamor and her near-collapse on hearing of "her friend's" tragic end, the morning after her triumphant opening. The fact that she was Parris Tarrant's daughter was duly stressed, and in some instances, supplemented by the distorted information that the "murder apartment" had been rented by the young actress from her sister—her older sister, if you please!—who was by way of being a literary agent, under the family name of Applebee, and had handled the work for "many years."

I'm afraid my nerves were still raw from yesterday's shock. For I simply couldn't see the funny side of it.

And Claire was absolutely furious. "The nerve!" she stormed in her best Broadway jargon. "Grabbing herself some publicity, okay, let it pass! But saying she was Margot's friend, when she's called her an old hussy on the phone! And walking all over you in that brazen manner! Jane Applebee, if you want me to keep my respect for you, you throw that red-headed sister of yours out on her ear the moment she comes back—or sooner!"

I felt exactly the same way as Claire, but telling her so wouldn't improve things.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a sudden opening for a radical change in plans, programs and environs, with long-range and thrilling denouements. BRAVES MAY BE NL 'DARK HORSE'

Billy Southworth May Build Front Ranking Team in Boston This Year

NEW YORK, April 10—A lot of fans who like the way Billy Southworth manages a ball club pick the Boston Braves to be the dark horse in the 1946 National League pennant race.

Events of the last three weeks have strengthened their belief. Even the experts who didn't give the Braves a look in when Spring training began are beginning to wonder if Billy the Kid isn't going to do a lot better in his first season as the boss of the Braves than expected. When he left the Cardinals for the job, it looked like he was leaving a sure-fire pennant winner for a team doomed to the second division.

But the Braves have taken on a possible first division complexion. They still don't stack up with the Cardinals, man for man, but it may be that they won't have to dip their colors to any other club in the league.

The big surprises of Spring training were the way in which Carvel (Bama) Rosell took to outfield play, the manner in which Nanny Fernandez is hitting the ball, and the pitching of Johnny Sain and Jimmy Wallace.

Rowell has won an outfield berth—with Tommy Holmes, second man in the league's batting parade last year, and Johnny Hopp, purchased from the Cardinals, the other regulars. Max West, one of the team's hardest hitters before he went into service, and Chuck Workman will be ready to step should either of the three falter.

The infield will have Johnny McCarthy at first, Connie Ryan at second, Whitey Wietelman at short and Fernandez at third.

Phil Masi, Stu Hofferth and Hugh Poland will do the catching with Masi the No. 1 man.

Sain and Wallace are sure of starting berths and if Mort Cooper can overcome the arm ailment which sidelined him last year after he went to the Braves from the Cardinals, the Braves pitching prospects would become rosy.

There still is doubt whether Al Javery will be able to hurl because of arm trouble but even without him Southworth has such moundmen as Ed Wright, Elmer Singleton, Bill Lee, Sailor Bill Posedel, Louis Tost, Johnny Hutchings and Don Hendrickson on hand. It could be a lot better pitching staff than most baseball people think.

In 1914 Brian Boru, Irish king, and his troops defeated the Danish invaders at Clontarf. He, his son and grandson were killed in the battle.

W A R VETERAN PAGES DIVERS

Anderson, OSU Student, Hurt When Plane Was Shot Down In Germany

COLUMBUS, April 10—A stocky blond war veteran who a few months ago wasn't sure he would ever walk without a limp today is writing new rules into the fancy diving book.

He is Ohio State's Miller Anderson—Western Conference champion, National Collegiate champion, national A. A. U. high and low board king.

Anderson was a fighter pilot, flying a P-47 over Italy in the days when the Nazis were on the run up the boot. He had a remarkable total of 111 missions, but on the 112th he was shot down behind German lines.

When he bailed out, the rudder of his plane struck him on the left leg above the knee and broke it. Then he landed on that same leg.

The Germans captured Anderson and set the leg but they were hard pressed with little time for Allied prisoners. When Anderson was again under the care of American medics the leg had to be re-broken. He was in a huge cast for weeks.

The leg came out a little shorter than the other and stiff at the knee. Instead of a thigh bone there a large silver plate.

Anderson came back to Ohio State last Winter quarter just at the start of the swimming season. He came under the direction of Art Daniels, who supervises a physical education program for disabled veterans at the University.

Controlled exercise and daily massage began to loosen the knee a little.

He tried a few dives. They were painful but he could do it. He was accustomed to taking off from his left foot but that had to be changed and it confused him for awhile.

Eventually it seemed to come easier and the leg pained him less. He dived in exhibitions at several dual meets. Then the Great Lakes team came to Ohio natorium and shrewd Coach Mike Peppe let Anderson dive in competition. He won first place.

He competed against Michigan but placed only second to teammate Ted Christakos.

The Big Ten meet at Minneapolis was the turning point. The board in Cooke Hall pool was extremely stiff, which made it a little tougher. Anderson snapped through his dives to win the Western Conference title.

He went on to the National Collegiate title at Yale and then scored a double victory in the National AAU

WAR VETERAN PACES DIVERS

Anderson, OSU Student, Hurt When Plane Was Shot Down In Germany

COLUMBUS, April 10—A stocky blond war veteran who a few months ago wasn't sure he would ever walk without a limp today is writing new rules into the fancy diving book.

He is Ohio State's Miller Anderson, Western Conference champion, National Collegiate champion, national A. A. U. high and low board king.

Anderson was a fighter pilot, flying a P-47 over Italy in the days when the Nazis were on the run up the boot. He had a remarkable total of 111 missions, but on the 112th he was shot down behind German lines.

When he bailed out, the rudder of his plane struck him on the left leg above the knee and broke it. Then he landed on that same leg.

The Germans captured Anderson and set the leg but they were hard pressed with little time for Allied prisoners. When Anderson was again under the care of American medics the leg had to be re-broken. He was in a huge cast for weeks.

The leg came out a little shorter than the other and stiff at the knee. Instead of a thigh bone there a large silver plate.

Anderson came back to Ohio State last winter quarter just at the start of the swimming season. He came under the direction of Art Daniels, who supervises a physical education program for disabled veterans at the University. Controlled exercise and daily massage began to loosen the knee a little.

He tried a few dives. They were painful but he could do it. He was accustomed to taking off from his left foot but that had to be changed and it confused him for awhile.

Eventually it seemed to come easier and the leg pained him less. He dived in exhibitions at several dual meets. Then the Great Lakes team came to Ohio natatorium and shrewd Coach Mike Peppe let Anderson dive in competition. He won first place.

He competed against Michigan but placed only second to teammate Ted Christakos.

The Big Ten met at Minneapolis was the turning point. The board in Cooke Hall pool was extremely stiff, which made it a little tougher. Anderson snapped through his dives to win the Western Conference title.

He went on to the National Collegiate title at Yale and then scored a double victory in the National AAU meet at Bainbridge Naval station, winning the high board crown as well as the low board title.

Here the condition of his leg showed up. He has a little difficulty getting sufficient push with the resulting altitude from the low board, and he won that event by a narrow margin. From the high board nobody could touch him.

The 22-year-old Chicagoan has two things that enabled him to overcome the injury. He has marvelous muscular control that allows him to do unbelievable body twists. He has a distinctive flare and personality when he stands at the end of the diving board.

It's those body twists that may revise the diving regulations. Anderson has two new dives that left crowds at Yale and Bainbridge gaping.

The first is a "back one and one half somersault with a twist and a half." The other is a "front somersault and a half with a double twist." Even Anderson admits he isn't sure how he does them.

Dives are scored according to their degree of difficulty. Anderson's two new ones aren't even in the official list of approved dives but Coach Peppe is trying to do something about it.

"It would give the others something to shoot at," he says.

FRED WARING SHOW
 Virginia Field, film actress, and her husband, Paul Douglas, of the Broadway hit, "Born Yesterday," join in a comedy-drama sketch on the Fred Waring show, when they visit the Pennsylvanians in the broadcast Thursday at 11 a. m. The occasion for the visit of the noted duo is the birthday of Douglas, for many years associated with Waring as announcer. Musically, the program salutes April and Spring. The orchestra and glee club are heard in "April in Paris," and Mac Perrin, tenor, is the soloist in "I'll Remember April." Jane Wilson, soprano, and Walter Scheff, baritone, present a duet version of "Paris in the Spring," and the glee club sings the Tom Waring-Al Lewis song, "Reunion in April."

FRANK SINATRA
 Frank Sinatra will sing several songs from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" when he entertains screen star Gene Kelly, Wednesday, at 9 p. m., EST, over CBS. This will be the second of two Sinatra broadcasts from New York. Soon to be released by the Navy, Gene Kelly is working on his final service assignment, directing a top-secret documentary film. The Gershwin selections which Sinatra will sing are a medley of "Summertime," "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "Where Is My Bess?" He will solo also with "Give Me The Simple Life" and "I Fall In Love With You Every Day." The Pied Pipers will serve up, in their rhythmic style, "Settin' and A'Rockin'."

KAY KYSER
 Kay Kyser and his entire musical faculty will introduce special arrangements of "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Donkey Serenade" to the student body during a broadcast of the "College of Musical Knowledge" over NBC Wednesday at 10 p. m., EST. As an added musical treat in honor of Easter, the campus crew will collaborate on "Easter Parade." Michael Douglas will step out in his role as the singing senior at the "college" when he offers as a solo "Day by Day." Lucy Anne Polk, Kay's new singing discovery, will vocalize with "I'm A Big Girl Now." Trudy Erwin and the Sweet Shop Quartette will wind up the musical festivities when they sing "Personality."

ELLERY QUEEN
 Ellery Queen has a romantic mystery story and a magazine editor as his armchair detective for "The Adventures of the Girl Who Couldn't Get Married," Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., EST, over CBS. The amateur guest sleuth will be Carolyn Rolland, associate editor of the magazine Seventeen. A former newspaper reporter, Miss Rolland writes on general features and entertainment subjects. In his radio thriller, Ellery Queen himself falls in love with the frustrated girl who is unable to catch a husband, which sort of dashes a stream of water on the torch which his secretary, Nikki Porter, has been carrying for the slick sleuth. In one of his most unusual cases, Ellery gets himself hopelessly entangled and nearly loses his neck. Gertrude Warner will play "Nikki." Santos Ortega will be heard as "Inspector Richard Queen" of the homicide squad, and Ted de Corsia will be the gruff "Sergeant Tom Velie."

Wednesday, at 8 p. m., EST, over NBC. The long arm of coincidence puts them down at the wrong house in this comedy-mystery, and, of course, it's a house with a dead body in it. Their accidental hostess has suspected for some time that all was not well in her domain, but it took the Norths, skeptical at first of her tales of ghostly footsteps and apparitions, to prove it. When Pam and Jerry catch up with the murderer, they move calmly on to their original destination—the home of a writer friend, who excitedly takes down their adventure to weave into a mystery story. Alice Frost and Joseph Curtin are co-stars of the program which is produced and directed by John Loveton. Charles Paul and the orchestra contribute original theme music and Ben Grauer announces.

MUSICAL HEYDAY
 David Rose, recently out of the Army and now back on the bandstand as one of America's best-known young conductor-composers, leads his 45-piece orchestra in hit tunes of Jerome Kern, Cole Porter and other popular song writers on the new "Holiday for Music" program, Wednesday, at 10:30 p. m., EST, over CBS. Baritone Curt Massey and wide-eyed Kitty Kallen are vocal stars of the show. First awards in the request-songs contest will be announced. Winning letter writers will receive David Rose autographed record albums and table model combination radio-phonographs with automatic record-changers. Rose and the orchestra will play "I Get A Kick Out Of You," by Porter and "All Through the Day," which the late Jerome Kern wrote for "Centennial Summer," the 20th Century-Fox picture soon to be released. Curt Massey's selections will be "Day By Day," "Melancholy Baby," and "We'll Gather Lilacs," new English hit tune. Kitty Kallen, formerly vocalist with the Harry James and Jimmy Dorsey bands, will sing "Oh, What It Seemed To Be."
